

"ANTIS" HOPE TO WIN IN PRIMARIES; CAMPAIGN CLOSING

"Gene" Harris Picked to Beat Adrian Pool; Ferguson May Carry County.

It is just five days until the issue of the county and state political fight, which has been waiting warm—and is growing warmer—will be in the hands of the voters for final determination. As between the "antis" and the "rings," the "antis" claim they will win. With "Gene" Harris, their candidate for judge, leading their ticket and defeating Adrian Pool, "ring" candidate for the same office. The "rings" leaders are equally confident of victory.

Ferguson supporters claim that he will carry El Paso county over Thomas Hall, as the candidate of the Democrats for governor. The Ferguson-Hall campaign in the county has not been a spectacular one.

Polls Open Saturday Morning.
Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, the voting polls in the different precincts in the city and county will be opened to the voters, who, in most instances in the city, will be brought to the polls in automobiles furnished by the two political factions, the "ring" and "anti-ring." The candidates on the two tickets foot the bills. The voting booths will be opened at 8 o'clock and will remain open until 7 o'clock, when the election judges, associate judges and clerks will begin the count. It will probably be 8:30 or 9 o'clock before any returns are delivered at the county clerk's office.

Returns will be sent into the county clerk's office at all hours Saturday night and Sunday morning. The office will remain open Sunday and county clerk Park Pittman will be on hand to receive the returns. That has been Park's job for years. This election he will be receiving the returns of his successor, Judge E. B. McClintock, who is the "ring" candidate without opposition.

Vote May Total 6000.
There are just exactly 6344 votes that can be polled Saturday. There are some who say $800 will be polled, but others place the figure at 4000 or 5000. The thousands will be a large vote for the county. The "antis" claim that more interest is being shown in the election than in previous years. They say the county judge's race is responsible for the interest. Along these lines, "antis" predict that Gene Harris will come into El Paso with a 500 majority given him both in the upper and lower values. "Antis" are confident of Harris's election.

Of the total number of poll tax receipts, there are 4522 American holders, 2018 Mexican voters, 222 negroes and 12 Chinamen. The "antis" are counting on the Americans. The "antis" are running without any Mexican candidates on the ticket, and the "rings," which has three, has made up this point an argument for the Mexican vote.

Political Ballots Tabooed.
It appears that both the "antis" and the "rings" have placed a ban on political rallies. The "antis" were scheduled to hold a meeting at Cleveland square Monday night, but for no reason that could be ascertained, the rally has been postponed. Some "antis" say that they have the "ring" explaining and at present it is the better policy to leave matters stand as they are. The "rings" secured permission from the city council to use Cleveland square every Tuesday and Friday night after the band concert, but "ring" politicians have not announced any open air meetings for those nights.

Active but Quiet Campaign.
With the exception of the valley towns, it seems that both factions are pursuing a "quiet" campaign. The "antis" policy in the vote getting line. It is a fact that candidates on both sides, aided by their campaign managers and political workers, are keeping up a fight unceasingly, going without much needed sleep in order to be on the job day and night.

Fight is Hard One.
The "ring" leaders are very busy men these days and everybody is working hard. They realize that their success or defeat in the primaries may have a bearing on the city election and are more than anxious to win. Fearing that they cannot beat both Harris and Orndorff, the ring has nominated S. S. Carpenter from Clint as a candidate for county commissioner from precinct No. 2. George Fendell, of Tealta, anti-ring candidate, was keeping up opposition from there and the ring asked him to have his name placed on its ticket last week as a candidate. He refused to permit it and they brought out Carpenter against him. This leaves but one anti-ring candidate for commissioner without opposition. J. M. Walling, of Sierra Blanca, candidate for office from precinct 4. Had Walling and Fendell been elected without opposition, it would have been necessary for the ring to beat both Harris and Orndorff to retain control of the commissioners' court, as the only anti-ring man is commissioner Clifford of precinct No. 1, who is a candidate for reelection without opposition.

guards, detectives and petty court officers. Madame Calliaux wept when the court clerk, while reading the indictment, reached the words, "wilful murderer." She shook with sobs and looked around as though searching for a friendly face.

Tells of Her Past Life.
Mrs. Calliaux made a long statement regarding her past life, referring frequently to notes. Her voice was steady. She turned her head occasionally from time to time to look at the judge. Her speech and she showed much self-possession. She said:

"I was married at 19 to Leo Claretie. We had two daughters. One of them died when she was only six months old. The other, Germaine, is now 13. A divorce was granted to me in 1904, in my favor and the guardianship of our daughter was given to me."

Madame Calliaux spoke of her marriage to M. Calliaux with pride. She said:

Hears Whispers of Scandal.
"M. Calliaux was a premier and in marrying him I found complete happiness. I thought all would be happy, but alas my life began to be poisoned by calumnies. The campaign of the Figaro against my husband began. All the people in the salons that I frequented received me with smiles that were intended to wound me. One person said blind me that my husband had taken money from Germany to cede the Congo. Three months rumors penetrated every part of society. No longer able to go to sittings of the chamber of deputies because I was the object of unpleasant attention in the galleries. One day there was a cry behind me 'To Berlin! Calliaux, Congo!'"

Attacks Were Improbable.
"The attacks of the Figaro were improbable. They had nothing to do with politics. They were personal. I suffered. I lost my head."

Mme. Calliaux's voice sank and she seemed greatly moved. These criticisms of the judge waited a moment and then inquired:

"Why do you say the polemic of the Figaro had nothing to do with politics? 'I will tell you why.'"

She then searched among her notes and began to read passages from the Figaro.

"These," she shouted, "are some among the 113 articles published against my husband. These criticisms are not attacks on his politics, but on him. No one could be mistaken."

WILL COMMAND CARBAJAL TO STEP DOWN FORTHWITH

Carranza Prepares to Assume Provisional Presidency of Mexico.

Carranza expects Francisco Carbajal to turn over Mexico's governmental affairs to his party at once. He has ordered the force of Pablo Gonzalez, numbering 40,000 men, to march with 14 troop trains held in readiness to proceed from San Luis Potosi to Mexico City to take charge of the capital and preserve order. With him will go the army of Gen. Obregon which is in Guadaluajara and new numbers 25,000 men.

Carbajal Expected to Accede.
The three commissioners who are en route to Monterey, to hold a conference with Carranza, are believed to be carrying the information that Carbajal is ready to deliver the affairs of the government to Carranza and his party at once. This commission consists of Jesus Urzuea, Jose Y. Novelo and Enrique R. Mangel. Senora Urzuea and Mangel have been strong "Constitutionalists" in Mexico City, local "Constitutionalists" leaders say, and they have been imprisoned for their loyalty to the cause. The selection of these men by Carbajal is taken to mean that he is willing to surrender the office at once. Carranza will confer with the commission at Monterey and will then announce his plans for taking charge of the government.

Carranza to Take Charge.
After Carranza is in charge of the government as first chief, he will call a conference of the military chiefs and political leaders of his party in Mexico City. It will be decided at this conference whether or not Carranza will continue to act as provisional president until elections can be held. Plans for the organization of a congress, the revision of the constitution in accordance with the "Plan of Guadalupe" and the holding of constitutional elections will also be discussed at this conference.

AUTOMOBILE HITS PARK STREET CAR

As unidentified automobile driver had a miraculous escape Monday morning, when the machine he was driving, a Chandler "six," crashed into the rear end of a Washington park inbound car at the intersection of Campbell and Myrtle avenues. The automobile, according to witnesses, was coming down Campbell street at a high rate of speed, when the car passed the corner. Seeing that he could not get by the car the driver of the machine endeavored to turn his automobile in an effort to miss the car altogether. His efforts were fruitless, however, and the automobile struck the side of the car, taking off the step.

On examination it was found that the automobile had suffered a broken radiator, a badly twisted axle, a broken fender and windshield, and probably an expensive injury to the engine. The damage is estimated at $500. The automobile was a new machine with the number 1853, El Paso. The license issued to the person owning the machine gives the name of T. B. Cunningham, who is out of the city at present. Mrs. Cunningham states that Mr. Cunningham had sold the machine to a hardware dealer.

TRUST COMPANY ASKS MORE TIME.
The Commonwealth Trust company of Houston, which was awarded the contract for buying $500,000 worth of county court house and jail bonds several weeks ago, has written Judge A. J. S. Elyar, asking an extension of time for paying over the money.

The trust company in its letter, explains that delay in securing a legal opinion and in disposing of other technicalities has caused a slight hitch. The commissioner's court holds a check for $3,000 given by the trust company when it submitted its bid for the bonds. The court will hold a special session soon to pass on the request.
